FROM "POOR RICHARD'S" ALMANAC.

I HAVE heard that nothing gives an author so great pleasure as to find his works respectfully quoted by other learned authors. This pleasure I have seldom enjoyed; for though I have been, if I may say it without vanity, an eminent author (of almanacs) annually, now a full quarter of a century, my brother authors in the same way (for what reason I know not) have ever been very sparing in their applauses; and no other author has taken the least notice of me; so that, did not my writings produce me some solid pudding, the great deficiency of praise would have quite discouraged me. I concluded, at length, that the people were the best judges of my merit, for they buy my works; and, besides, in my rambles, where I am not personally known, I have frequently heard one and another of my adages repeated, with "As Poor Richard says," at the end on't. This gave me some satisfaction, as it showed not only that my instructions were regarded, but discovered likewise some respect for my authority; and I own, that to encourage the practice of remembering and repeating those wise sentences, I have sometimes quoted myself with great gravity. Judge, then, how much I have been gratified by an incident which I am going to relate to you. I stopped my horse lately where a great number of people were collected at an auction of merchants' goods. The hour of sale not being come, they were conversing on the badness of the times; and one of the company called to a plain, clean old man, with white locks, "Pray, Father Abraham, what think ye of the times? Won't these heavy taxes quite ruin the country? How shall we ever be able to pay them? What would you advise us to do?" Father Abraham stood up and replied, "If you'd have my advice, I'll give it to you in short: 'for a word to the wise is enough; and many words won't fill a bushel,' as Poor Richard says." They joined in desiring him to speak his mind; and gathering round him, he proceeded as follows: "Friends (says he) and neighbors, the taxes are indeed very heavy; and if those laid on by government were the only ones we had to pay, we might more easily discharge them, but we have many others, and much more grievous to some of us. We are taxed twice as much by our idleness, three times as much by our pride, and four times as much by our folly; and from these taxes the commissioners cannot ease or deliver us, by allowing an abatement. However, let us hearken to good advice, and something may be done for us: 'God helps them that help themselves,' as Poor Richard says in his almanac. It would be thought a hard government that should tax its people one-tenth part of their time, to be employed in its service; but idleness taxes many of us much more, if we reckon all that is spent in absolute sloth, or doing of nothing, with that which is spent in idle employments or amusements that amount to nothing. Sloth, by bringing on diseases, absolutely shortens life. 'Sloth, like rust, consumes faster than labor wears, while the key often used is always bright,' as Poor Richard says. 'But dost thou love life? then do not squander time, for that's the stuff life is made of,' as Poor Richard says. How much more than is necessary do we spend in sleep, forgetting that 'the sleeping fox catches no poultry, and that there will be sleeping enough in the grave,' as Poor Richard says. 'If time be of all things the most precious, wasting time must be (as Poor Richard says) the greatest prodigality;' since, as he elsewhere tells us,

SUPREME COURT, CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—Peter C. Roedel, plaintiff, against Goodwin Watson, defendant.—Summons for money demand on contract.—[Com. not ser.]—To the above named defendant. You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint in this action, which will be filed in the office of the Clerk of the City and County of New York, at the City Hall in said City, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office, No. 33 Wall Street, in the City of New York, within twenty days after the service of this summons on you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of sixty-one dollars and fifty cents ($61.50), with interest from the 11th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, besides the costs of this action.

Dated August 28, 1867.

J. A. BEALL,
PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY.

The complaint in this action was filed in the office of the Clerk of the City and County of New York, on the first day of October, 1867.

J. A. BEALL,
PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY.

REYNOLDS'S SPECIFIC FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.—This justly celebrated medicine continues to be held in the highest estimation by numerous gouty and rheumatic sufferers. The most agonizing pains are relieved in a few hours by a single dose, and a few repetitions restore the use of the limbs, and leave the sufferer in perfect health. Sold in New York by Messrs. CARLE & STRONG, 152 Water Street; JOSEPH HORSEY'S SON, 84 Maiden Lane, and S. NEWBY, 89 Maiden Lane; wholesale by the proprietor, Mr. THOS. REYNOLDS, Edmonton, Middlesex, England.

FOR SALE—THE LEASE AND FIXTURES of one of the best corner stores (west side), on Eighth Avenue. For particulars inquire at 443 Eighth Avenue.

THE FIXTURES OF AN EXTENSIVELY fitted up Market for sale cheap, as the owner is closing business. Call at the corner of Fulton Avenue and Hoyt Street, Brooklyn.

HARD METAL.—WE WOULD CALL THE ATTENTION of Printers to the Metal we are now using. It is the result of long continued experiments for the purpose of obtaining such toughness as will preserve the hair lines, and resist the pressure put upon it by power press printing.

METAL FURNITURE.—THIS ARTICLE HAS COME to be a necessity in every Printing Office, and no well-appointed Office can afford to be without it. It is put up in fonts of 50 lbs. and upwards. Our pattern gives a greater number of pieces in the same weight, and is stronger than the old kind.

PRINTING MATERIALS.—HAVING THE GREATEST facilities for furnishing all kinds of Printing materials, our customers may depend upon getting the best article.

PRINTING PRESSES.—WE CAN SUPPLY ALL KINDS of Printing Presses at manufacturers' prices. Printers who are ordering Bills of Type can avail themselves of our services, and have their purchases made through us.

THE TYPE CAST IN OUR FOUNDRY HAS OBTAINED great reputation for durability. The letters have deep counters; and the Metal is hard, and has a solidity and toughness which gives it great durability. We are now using this Metal exclusively in the manufacture of our Type.

LABOR-SAVING RULE.—DOUBLE, PARALLEL AND Single, in fonts costing about $75. Cases, $2 each. The above rule will be found very convenient for Table and all other like kinds of work; and as the mitred corners are accurately made to certain ems, much pains and labor will be spared by having a font of this rule in the Printing Office.

WOOD TYPE.—ORDERS FOR WOOD TYPE ARE respectfully solicited. Having made arrangements to keep a stock of the most useful and latest styles, we can fill orders for almost any kind or size, on the SHORTEST NOTICE.

PRINTING INKS.—WE ARE AGENTS FOR THE BEST manufacturers of Newspaper, Book and Colored Inks of all qualities. We are able, therefore, to supply Printers at the lowest prices.

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF Cruelty to Animals.—Rooms No. 286 Broadway. All Police Officers are instructed by Order 453 to prevent cruelty to animals. Call the attention of Officers to cases as they occur, and report the number of the Officer to these Rooms, that the Officer may be complimented for well doing.

EDITORS OR PRINTERS WISHING TO ESTABLISH a Newspaper, Book or Job Office, will be furnished with an Estimate in detail for the same.

I concluded, at length, that the people were the best judges of my merit, for they buy my works; and, besides, in my rambles, where I am not personally known, I have frequently heard one and another of my adages repeated, with "As Poor Richard says," at the end of 't. This gave me some satisfaction, as it showed not only that my instructions were regarded, but discovered likewise some respect for my authority; and I own, that to encourage the practice of remembering and repeating those wise sentences, I have sometimes quoted myself with great gravity. Judge, then, how much I have been gratified by an incident which I am going to relate to you. I stopped my horse lately where a great number of people were collected at an auction of merchants' goods. The hour of sale not being come, they were conversing on the badness of the times; and one of the company called to a plain, clean old man, with white locks, "Pray, Father Abraham, what think ye of the times? Won't these heavy taxes quite ruin the country? How shall we ever be able to pay them? What would you advise us to do?" Father Abraham stood up and replied, "If you'd have my advice, I'll give it to you in short: 'for a word to the wise is enough; and many words won't fill a bushel,' as Poor Richard says." They joined in desiring him to speak his mind; and gathering round him, he proceeded as follows: "Friends (says he) and neighbors, the taxes are indeed very heavy; and if those laid on by government were the only ones we had to pay, we might more easily discharge them, but we have many others, and much more grievous to some of us. We are taxed twice as much by our idleness, three times as much by our pride, and four times as much by our folly; and from these taxes the commissioners cannot ease or deliver us, by allowing an abatement. However, let us harken to good advice, and some thing may be done for us: 'God helps them that help themselves,' as Poor Richard says in his almanac. It would be thought a hard government that should tax its people one-tenth part of their time, to be employed in its service; but idleness taxes many of us much more, if we reckon all that is spent in absolute sloth, or doing of nothing, with that which is spent in idle employments or amusements that amount to nothing. WHO shall estimate the cost of priceless reputation—that impress which gives the human dross its currency—without which we stand despised, debased, depreciated? Who shall repair it injured? Who shall redeem it lost? Oh! well and truly does the great philosopher of poetry esteem the world's wealth as "trash" in the comparison. Without it gold has no value, birth no distinction, station no dignity, beauty no charm, age no reverence; or, should I not rather say, without it every treasure impoverishes, every grace deforms, every dignity degrades, and all the arts, the decorations and accomplishments of life stand, like the beacon-blaze, upon a rock, warning the whole world that its approach is danger—that its contact is death. The wretch without it is under eternal quarantine—no friend to greet, no home to harbor him. The voyage of his life becomes a joyless peril; and in the midst of all ambition can achieve, or avarice amass, or rapacity plunder, he tosses on the surge a buoyant pestilence! But let me not degrade into the selfishness of individual safety, or individual exposure, this universal principle; it testifies a higher, a more ennobling origin. It is this which, consecrating the humble circle of the hearth, will at times extend itself to the circumstances of the horizon; which nerves the arm of the patriot to save his country; which lights the lamp of the philosopher to amend man; which, if it does not inspire, will yet invigorate the martyr to merit immortality; which, when the world's agony is passed, and the glory of another is dawning, will prompt the prophet, even in his chariot of fire, and in his vision of heaven, to bequeath to mankind the mantle of his memory! Oh, divine—oh, delightful legacy of a spotless reputation! Rich is the inheritance it leaves; pious the example it testifies; pure, precious and imperishable the hope which it inspires! Can you conceive a more atrocious injury than to filch from its possessor this inestimable benefit—to rob society of its charm, and solitude of its solace;—not only to outlaw life, but to attain death, converting the very grave, the refuge of the sufferer, into the gate of infamy and of shame? I conceive few crimes beyond it. He who plunders my property takes from me that which can be repaired by

Won't these heavy taxes quite ruin the country? How shall we ever be able to pay them? What would you advise us to do?" Father Abraham stood up and replied: "If you'd have my advice, I'll give it to you in short: 'for a word to the wise is enough; and many words won't fill a bushel,' as Poor Richard says." They joined in desiring him to speak his mind; and gathering round him, he proceeded as follows: "Friends (says he) and neighbors, the taxes are, indeed, very heavy; and if those laid on by Government were the only ones we had to pay, we might more easily discharge them; but we have many others, and much more grievous to some of us. We are taxed twice as much by our

AGRICULTURE.

The conversion of oxygen into carbonic acid is as necessary to the evolution of the seed as to the growth of the plant, and is all that is required for germination; but the plant requires something more, for if light be excluded, vegetation proceeds imperfectly, and the plant does not then acquire its proper color, and other active properties which it ought to have. The chief organs by which the consumption of oxygen gas is effected, are the leaves; and its purpose, in great part at least, seems to be that of producing some necessary change in the sap during its transmission through those organs, on its way from the vessels of the wood to those of the inner bark, whereby it may be rendered fit for the purposes of nutrition and growth.

In its nature and object, therefore, as well as in the specific change which it produces in the air, this process closely resembles the function of respiration in animals, and may thus with propriety be deemed a physiological process. The second, or purifying process, in which oxygen gas is evolved, differs in all respects from that which has just been described. It is in a great measure independent of temperature; at least it proceeds in temperature too low to support vegetation, provided light be present, an agent not required for germination, nor essential to vegetable development. The organs by which this process acts on the air are, as before the leaves; not, however, by changing the qualities of the sap in the vessels of those organs, but by producing changes in the chromule, or colorable matter, in their cells, to which it imparts color and other active properties. In doing this, it does not convert the oxygen gas of the air into carbonic acid, but, by decomposing that acid gas, restores to the air the identical portion of oxygen of which the former process had deprived it. The former process, carried on by the agency of the oxygen gas of the air, was essential to living action, and affected the well-being of the whole plant; that exercised by the agency of light is not necessary to life, is local, not general in its operation, and is capable of proceeding in circumstances and under conditions incompatible with living action. By withdrawing the air altogether, or depriving it of oxygen gas, vegetation soon ceases through the whole plant, but the exclusion of light from any part of the plant affects that part only; and even the total exclusion of that agent only deprives the plant of certain properties necessary to its perfection, but not essential to its life. These differences in the processes by which oxygen gas is alternately consumed and evolved, during the vegetation of plants in sunshine, are so manifest, both in

How sweet to wander here, when orient day
Tinges, with rosetae hue, the milky spray!
What time the Spring from Winter's bondage clear,
Wakes into life and joy the infant year;
When smile the cloudless heavens, and Western gales
Sport in the tumbling billow's glassy vales.

See! where exulting o'er the azure field,
The days bright regent lifts his golden shield,
Round, dazzling, vast, ethereal world of flame,
That warms, illumines, sustains this beauteous frame.
Roll on, bright Orb, in peerless splendor roll;
To worlds on worlds the life-diffusing soul;
Around thy path what nameless glories stream,
Fire the blue vault, and o'er the billows gleam,
As if the heavens revealed to mortal sight,
Their topaz pavements in a blaze of light;
And through the morn's red portals pour'd abroad
Life, love and rapture, from the throne of God.

Burnish'd with gold, the cliffs resplendent shine,
And cast their shadows in the glancing brine,
Trembling and soft, as though the magic hand,
Of some cerulean nymph in colors bland,
Had traced the scene, and back to nature gave
Her beauteous image from the pictured wave.
Light flit the vapors o'er the distant hill,
The prospect opens wide and wider still;

And Jura's paps yet white with Winter snow;
Bright o're the billows shine the sparkling isles,
And heaven on earth with boundless beauty smiles.

It was thirteen years since my mother's death, when after a long absence from my native village, I stood beside the sacred mound beneath which I had seen her buried. Since that mournful period, a great change had come over me. My childish years had passed away, and with them my youthful character. The world was altered too; and as I stood at my mother's grave, I could hardly realize that I was the same thoughtless, happy creature, whose cheeks she so often kissed in an excess of tenderness. But the varied events of thirteen years had not effaced the remembrance of that mother's smile. It seemed as if I had seen her but yesterday—as if the blessed sound of her well-remembered voice was in my ear. The gay dreams of my infancy and childhood were brought back so distinctly to my mind, that had it not been for one bitter recollection, the tears I shed would have been gentle and refreshing. The circumstance may seem a trifling one—but the thought of it now pains my heart, and I relate it, that those children who have parents to love them, may learn to value them as they ought.

My mother had been ill a long time, and I had become so accustomed to her pale face and weak voice, that I was not frightened at them, as children usually are. At first, it is true, I sobbed violently; but when, day after day, I returned from school, and found her the same, I began to believe she would always be spared to me; but they told me she would die.

One day when I had lost my place in the class, and done my work wrong side outward, I came home discouraged, and fretful;—I went to my mother's chamber. She was paler than usual, but she met me with the same affectionate smile that always welcomed my return. Alas! when I look back, through the lapse of thirteen years, I think my heart must have been stone, not to have been melted by it. She requested me to go down stairs, and bring her a glass of water;—I pettishly asked why she did not call a domestic to do it. With a look of mild reproach which I shall never forget if I live to be a hundred years old, she said, 'And will not my daughter bring a glass of water, for her poor sick mother?'

I went and brought her the water, but I did not do it kindly. Instead of smiling and kissing her, as I was wont to do, I set the glass down very quickly and left the room. After playing a short time. I went to bed without bidding my mother good night; but when alone in my room, in darkness and silence, I remembered how pale she looked, and how her voice trembled when she said 'Will not my daughter bring a glass of water for her poor sick mother?' I couldn't sleep. I stole into her chamber to ask forgiveness. She had sunk into an easy slumber, and they told me I must not waken her. I did not tell any one what troubled me, but stole back to my bed, resolved to rise early in the morning, and tell her how sorry

BREVIER, No. 6.

His form was fair, his cheek was health;
 His word a bond, his purse was wealth;
 With wheat his field was cover'd o'er,
 Plenty sat smiling at his door.
 His wife the fount of ceaseless joy;
 How laugh'd his daughter, play'd his boy;
 His library, though large was read,
 Till half its contents deck'd his head.
 At morn 'twas health, wealth, pure delight,
 'Twas health, wealth, peace and bliss at night;
 I wish'd not to disturb his bliss—
 'Tis gone! but all the fault was his.
 The social glass I saw him seize,
 The more with festive wit to please,
 Daily increase his love of cheer—
 Ah, little thought he I was near!
 Gradual indulgence on him stole,
 Frequent became the midnight bowl.
 I in that bowl the headache placed,
 Which, with the juice, his lips embraced.
 Shame next I mingled with the draught;
 Indignantly he drank and laugh'd.
 In the bowl's bottom bankruptcy
 I placed—he drank with tears and glee.
 Remorse did I into it pour;
 He only sought the bowl the more.
 I mingled next joint torturing pain;
 Little the less did he refrain.
 The dropsy in the cup I mix'd;
 Still to his mouth the cup was fix'd.
 My emissaries thus in vain
 I sent the mad wretch to restrain.
 On the bowl's bottom then myself
 I threw; the most abhorrent elf
 Of all that mortals hate or dread;
 And thus in horrid whispers said—
 "Successless ministers I've sent,
 Thy hastening ruin to prevent."

HANSEATIC LEAGUE.

BESIDES the towns already mentioned, there were others that were denominated Confederate cities or allies. The latter neither contributed to the common fund of the League, nor sent deputies to Congress; even the members were not all on the same footing in respect to privileges: and the internal commotions by which it was frequently agitated, partly originating in this cause, and partly in the discordant interests and conflicting pretensions of the different cities, materially impaired the power of the Confederacy. But in spite of these disadvantages, the League succeeded for a lengthened period, not only in controlling its own refractory members, but in making itself respected and dreaded by others. It produced able generals and admirals, skillful politicians, and some of the most enterprising, successful and wealthy merchants of modern times.

As the power of the Confederate cities was increased and consolidated, they became much more ambitious. Instead of limiting their efforts to the actual advancement of commerce and their own protection, they then endeavored to acquire the monopoly of the trade of the North, and to exercise the same sort of dominion over the Baltic that the Venetians exercised over the Adriatic. For this purpose, they succeeded in obtaining, partly in return for loans of the money, and partly by force, various privileges and immunities from the northern sovereigns, which secured to them almost the whole foreign commerce of Scandinavia, Denmark, Prussia, Poland, Russia, etc. They exclusively carried on the herring fishery of the Sound, at the same time that they endeavored to obstruct and hinder the navigation of foreign vessels in the Baltic. It should, however, be observed, that the immunities which they enjoyed were mostly indispensable to

EVENING.

How lovely, Evening, is thy parting smile!
The twilight softness of thy glowing sky
May well the poet's pensive dream beguile,
And kindle rapture in his languid eye,
There is a quiet magic in the sigh
Of thy cool breezes and the twinkling dews,
The insect's hum, the bird's wild melody,
Thy few faint stars, and all the varying hues.

More blithe the nightingale's reviving lay:
The drops fall sparkling from the leafy spray,
As fitful breezes toss the straggling brier;
And the far hill flings back the level ray;
So pure the liquid air, that cot and spire,
In distance gleam with evening's golden fire.

The poet's glances, wheresoe'er they roll,
A paradise of living splendor make;
And in the magic mirror of his soul,
Earth's simple beauties lovelier forms awake;
As in the green depth of some limpid lake,
Unruffled by the west wind's vesper sighs,
Tree, hill, and cloud, a soften'd brilliance
Till all the landscape in reflection lies
A fairy world of light, enshrin'd in purer.

PICA ROMAN, No. 2.

A peculiar trait in his rich and varied character, remains to be noticed ; that ardent and enthusiastic imagination, which threw a magnificence over his whole style of thinking. Herrera intimates, that he had a talent for poetry, and some slight traces of it are on record in the book of prophecies, which he presented to the Catholic sovereigns. But his poetical temperament is discernible throughout all his writings, and in all his actions. It spread a golden and glorious world around him, and tinged every thing with its own gorgeous colors. It betrayed him into visionary speculations, which subjected him to the sneers and cavilings of men of cooler and safer, but more groveling minds. Such were the conjectures formed on the coast of Paria, about the form of the earth, and the situation of the terrestrial paradise ; about the mines of Ophir, in Hispaniola, and of the Aurea Chersonesus, in Veragua ; and such was the heroic scheme of the crusade, for the recovery of the holy sepulchre. It mingled with his religion, and filled his mind with solemn and visionary meditations, on mystic passages of the Scriptures, and the shadowy portents of the prophecies. It exalted his office in his eyes, and made him conceive himself an agent sent forth upon a sublime and awful mission, subject to impulses and supernatural visions from the Deity : such as the voice he imagined spoke to him in comfort, amidst the troubles of Hispaniola, and in the silence of the night, on the disastrous coast of Veragua.

He was decidedly a visionary, but a visionary of an uncommon and successful kind. The manner, in which his ardent imagination and mercurial nature were controlled by a powerful judgment, and directed by an acute sagacity, is the most extraordinary feature in his character. Thus governed, his imagination, instead of wasting itself in idle soarings, lent wings to his judgment, and bore it away to conclusions at which common minds could never have arrived ; nay, which they could not perceive when pointed out.

To this intellectual vision it was given, to read in the signs of the times, and the reveries of past ages, the indications of an unknown world, as soothsayers were said to read predictions in the stars, and to foretell events from the visions of the night. His soul, observes a Spanish writer, was superior to the age in which he lived. For him was reserved the great enterprise to plow a sea, which had given rise to so many fables, and to decipher the mystery of his time.

With all the visionary fervor of his imagination, its fondest dreams fell short of the reality. He died in ignorance of the real grandeur of his discovery. Until his last breath, he entertained the idea, that he had merely opened a new way to the old resorts of opulent commerce, and had discovered some of the wild regions of the East. He supposed Hispaniola to be the ancient Ophir which had been visited by the ships of Solomon, and that Cuba and Terra Firma, were but remote parts of Asia. What visions of glory would have broke upon his mind, could he have known that he had indeed discovered a new continent, equal to the whole of the old world in magnitude, and separated by two vast oceans from all the earth hitherto known by civilized man ; and how would his magnanimous spirit have been consoled, amidst the chills of age, and cares of penury, the neglect of a fickle public, and the injustice of an ungrateful king, could he have anticipated the splendid empires which were to spread over the beautiful world he had discovered, and the nations and tongues and languages which were to fill its lands with his renown, and to revere and bless his name to the latest posterity !

Rome was an ocean of flame. Height and depth were covered with red surges, that rolled before the blast like an endless tide. The billows burst up the sides of the hills, which they turned into instant volcanoes, exploding volumes of smoke and fire ; then plunged into the depths in a hundred glowing cataracts, then climbed and consumed again. The distant sound of the city in her convulsion went to the soul. The air was filled with the steady roar of the advancing flame, the crash of falling houses, and the hideous outcry of the myriads flying through the streets, or surrounded and perishing in the conflagration. All was clamor, violent struggle, and helpless death. Men and women of the highest rank were on foot, trampled by the rabble that had then lost all respect of conditions. One dense mass of miserable life, irresistible from its weight, crushed by the narrow streets, and scorched by the flames over their heads, rolled through the gates like an endless stream.

In the cold sunshine of yon narrow dell,
Affection lingers ; there two lovers dwell,
Greenland's whole family ; nor long forlorn,
There comes a visitant ; a babe is born.
O'er his meek helplessness the parents smiled ;
'Twas hope :—for hope is every mother's child.
Then seemed they in that world of solitude,
The Eve and Adam of a race renew'd.
Brief happiness ! too perilous to last ;
The moon hath wax'd and waned, and all is past.
Behold the End!—one morn athwart the wall,
They marked the shadow of a reindeer fall,
Bounding in tameless freedom o'er the snow ;
The father track'd him, and with fatal bow
Smote down the victim ; but, before his eyes,
A rabid she-bear pounced upon the prize ;
A shaft into the spoiler's flank he sent,
She turn'd in wrath, and limb from limb had rent
The hunter ; but his dagger's plunging steel,
With riven bosom made the monster reel ;
Unvanquish'd, both to closer combat flew,
Assailants each, till each the other slew ;
Mingling their blood from mutual wounds they lay,
Stretch'd on the carcass of their antler'd prey.
Meanwhile his partner waits, her heart at rest,
No burden but her infant on her breast ;
With him she slumbers, or with him she plays,
And tells him all her dreams of future days,
Asks him a thousand questions, feigns replies,
And reads whate'er she wishes in his eyes.
—Red evening comes ; no husband's shadow falls
Where fell the reindeer's, o'er the latticed walls :
'Tis night ! no footstep sounds towards her door ;
The day returns—but he returns no more.
In frenzy forth she sallies, and with cries,
To which no voice except her own replies,
In frightful echoes, startling all around,
Where human voice again shall never sound,
She seeks him, finds him not ; some angel guide
In mercy turns her from the corpse aside ;
Perhaps his own freed spirit, lingering near,
Who waits to waft her to a happier sphere,
But leads her first, at evening to their cot,
Where lies the little one, all day forgot ;
Imparadised in sleep, she finds him there,
Kisses his cheek, and breathes a mother's prayer.
Three days she languishes, nor can she shed
One tear between the living and the dead.

Wir Deutsche sind so sehr daran gewöhnt, in großen Reformen Nachtreter des Auslandes zu sein, daß wir erst allmählig die Energie gewinnen, welche zur Beseitigung veralteter Mißbräuche nothwendig ist. Man kann behaupten, daß diese Ergründlichkeit zu welcher neben aller wissenschaftlichen und theoretischen Gründlichkeit doch auch Thatkraft und ein rasch erfassender, praktischer Sinn erforderlich sind, erst mit dem Aufschwunge unseres nationalen Bewußtseins so recht lebendig geworden ist. Mit der Ueberzeugung, ein großes, einheitliches, tonangebendes Volk geworden zu sein, haben wir es auch rasch gelernt, den Nationen, welchen wir jetzt politisch ebenbürtig sind, ihre besseren Eigenschaften abzulauschen. Mit der Leichtgläubigkeit und Eleganz des Franzosen suchen wir die technische Geschicklichkeit des Engländers und das praktische Verwaltungs- und Organisations-talent des Nordamerikaners zu verbinden. Der Stolz auf unsere nationale Stellung, welche uns eine einflußreiche Stimme auf dem Gebiete der Politik sichert, hat das Streben, es in allen Einrichtungen und Neuerungen den anderen Völkern zuvorzutun, in einem hohen Grade wachgerufen. Mit der Vervollkommnung unserer Waffen und unserer Armee-Organisation, welche sich glänzend bewährt haben, ging das Streben nach Verbesserung der Krankenpflege Hand in Hand. Die Sorge für die Verwundeten war das Gegengewicht, welches die Menschlichkeit und Bruderliebe bot im Gegenjah zu der Sorgfalt, welche man den Mitteln der Zerkörung gewidmet hatte. Die Wunden, welche die eine Hand geschlagen hatte, suchte die andere zu heilen und so vereinigten sich grimmige Wuth und milde Barmherzigkeit auf denselben Feldern. Vor Allem galt es, jenen unsichtbaren Feind zu bekämpfen, welcher in den Hospitälern und Lazarethen die Säle verpestete und alljährlich Hunderte, ja Tausende von zumlangepferchten Verwundeten, Operirten oder Kranken dahinraffte. Daß die schlimmsten Feinde die verborgenen sind, offenbarte sich bei diesen Hospitalkrankheiten, die nicht minder verheerend als der Augestregen unter Denjenigen wütheten, welche die Lazarethe zu ihrer Heilung betreten hatten, und die selbst in Friedenszeiten mit schauerlicher Wirkung die Gesundheit der Hospitalbewohner untergruben, die geringsten Wunden zu gefährlichen machten, den leichtesten, unter günstigen Privatverhältnissen unbedingt gefahrlosen Operationen einen oft tödlichen Verlauf bereiteten. Die Spuren jenes in den Krankenzimmern offenbar vorhandenen Ausbreitungshoffes äuherten sich in bestimmten Krankheitsbildern, welche man mit den Namen Eitervergiftung, Wandrose und Hospitalbrand belegte; aber auch innere, besonders typhöse Erkrankungen schienen ihre Quelle in diesem unheimlichen Contagium zu haben, dessen Gang man verfolgte und dessen Einfluß man doch nicht bannen konnte.

Ein nationales Erinnerungsblatt für das neu erkundene deutsche Reich, ein Kunstblatt in Farbendruck, ist im Verlag von Löwenstein & Co. in Giebersfeld erschienen, das ebenso geistvoll componirt, wie künstlerisch schön ausgeführt ist. Schöpfer desselben ist Hermann Würz, ein reich begabter Düsseldorf'er Maler. Das Bild verinnlicht die Wiederherstellung des deutschen Kaiserreichs. Durch ein mit Blumen verwundenes Portal reitet mit erhobenen Banner der deutsche Kaiser. Das Blumengewinde vereinigt die norddeutschen mit den süddeutschen Wappen, welche durch Bänder in deutschen Farben gehalten werden. Am Fuße des Portals reichen sich, vom deutschen Reichsadler vereinigt, Süd und Nord die Bruderhand, während sich rechts und links die Idee des Sieges und des Friedens in schönsten Gruppirungen dargestellt finden. Erstere in einer kräftigen, mit Eichenlaub betränzten Figur, Deutschland's Wehkraft darstellend, die Hand am Schwert, jeden Feind energisch abweisend; den Fuß fest aufstehend auf das gefallene Schild der kaiserlich-französischen Glorie. Vor ihr in trotziger, aber niedergebogener Haltung die gefesselte Gallia, die phrygische Mütze, das Sinnbild der Republik, auf dem Haupte. Zu ihren Füßen den im Sterben noch Gift und Feuer speienden Drachen und die zerbrochenen Insiquien des französischen Kaiserreichs. Auf der andern Seite in süßlicher Darstellung die Segnungen des Friedens. Zwischen den Attributen des Handels, der Industrie, der Schifffahrt und den blühenden Zeichen der Landwirthschaft erhebt sich in begehrter

Die Wacht am Rhein.

Es braust ein Ruf wie Donnerhall,
Wie Schwertgeklirr und Wogenprall:
Zum Rhein, zum Rhein, zum deutschen Rhein!
Wer will des Stromes Hüter sein?
Lieb Vaterland magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

Durch Hunderttausend zukt es schnell,
Und Aller Augen blihen hell;
Der deutsche Jüngling, fromm und stark,
Beschirmt die heil'ge Landesmark.
Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

Und ob mein Herz im Tode bricht,
Wirst du doch d'rum ein Welscher nicht.
Reich, wie an Wasser deine Flut,
Ist Deutschland ja an Heldeblut.
Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

Er blickt hinauf in Himmelsau'n,
Wo Helden-Väter niederschau'n,
Und schwört mit stolzer Kampfeslust:
Du Rhein bleibst deutsch, wie meine Brust!
Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

So lang ein Tropfen Blut noch glüht,
Noch eine Faust den Degen zieht,
Und noch ein Arm die Büchse spannt,
Betriff kein Feind hier deinen Strand.
Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

Der Schwur erschallt, die Woge rinnt,
Die Fahnen flattern hoch im Wind:
Zum Rhein, zum Rhein, zum deutschen Rhein!
Wir alle wollen Hüter sein!
Lieb Vaterland, magst ruhig sein:
Fest steht und treu die Wacht am Rhein.

Du Rhein bleibst deutsch, wie meine Brust!
Lieb Vaterland ze.

So lang ein Tropfen Blut noch glüht,
Noch eine Faust den Degen zieht,
Und noch ein Arm die Büchse spannt,
Betritt kein Feind hier deinen Strand.
Lieb Vaterland ze.
